Centre for Development and Research in Education brings together experts in research, evaluation, knowledge exchange and professional development in one team. We are statisticians, social researchers, curriculum designers, teacher trainers, and so much more.

CDARE was formed in 2016 as an amalgamation of two well-established research centres: Centre for Science Education and Centre for Education and Inclusion Research. We have been successfully developing and delivering educational innovations and evaluations locally, nationally and internationally for over 25 years.

Our staff have expertise across a wide range of disciplinary areas, including:

- equality, diversity and inclusion
- science education
- mathematics education
- literacy and language education
- professional learning

Our methodological expertise is also varied and includes:

- randomised controlled trials
- quasi-experimental designs
- action research
- process evaluations
- survey design.

We are academically-focussed with a strong evidential base, client-orientated with a deep understanding of reality outside academia, cooperative and collaborative so that we can respond flexibly and creatively to client needs, and efficient and cost-effective with a commitment to delivery of the highest quality outputs.
